An act relative to a loan repayment program for human services workers

Bill purpose: To provide student loan repayment to human services workers who provide essential services to one-in-ten state residents. The bill would help human service organizations recruit and retain a stronger, more qualified workforce.

Recent action: HD.78 (Reps. Roy, Pignatelli) and SD. 512 (Sen. DiDomenico) filed in the House and Senate in January 2023.

Key Facts:

- Many human services workers' salaries start between $17 and $19 an hour. MIT calculations show that a living wage for a childless individual in Massachusetts is nearly $22 an hour.
- The lack of affordable higher education for human services workers and the burden of student debt greatly contribute to the sector's recruitment and retention difficulties.
- According to The Institute for College Access and Success, 56 percent of college graduates in Massachusetts had student loan debt in 2019-2020 with an average of $33,457 per person, placing the state eighth highest nationally on the institute's measure.
- According to a 2022 report published by the Education Data Initiative, nearly 13 percent of Massachusetts residents – more than one in eight – have some student loan debt.
- More than 75 percent of human service workers have attended some college or have a degree.

If passed, this legislation would:

- Amend Section 16 of Chapter 6A to create a student loan repayment program for human service workers who have maintained 12 consecutive months of employment in their roles at a minimum of 35 hours per week and hold certificates or undergraduate/graduate degrees.
- Help organizations recruit and retain human services workers by having the state repay qualified education loans. Applicants would be eligible for up to $6,000 if they have an associate degree, up to $20,000 if they have a bachelor's degree and up to $30,000 if they have a master's degree.
- Payments will be made directly to the lender and only during months the participant is working 35+ hours per week as a human services worker in Massachusetts.
- Pay back qualified education loans, meaning any indebtedness – including interest – to pay tuition or other direct expenses incurred in connection with the pursuit of a certificate, undergraduate or graduate degree by an applicant.
- Direct EOHHS to administer the program in accordance with DOE guidelines.
